The Chillicothe Bank Mob.
If the press be any index to public sentiment, the people of Missouri—and, indeed, the whole country—are remarkably sound on the subject of prompt and unqualified redemption of Bank paper. Not a paper in the State defends the Chillicothe mob.

The subject has received attention, and rebuke, from papers of the States. The following from a New York paper, is too good to be lost. We make only a couple of extracts. Speaking of the man who thought it just and proper to ask the Bank to redeem its promises to pay, the paper says:

"Now observe the beauty of the poetical justice meted to this miscreant. He thought to make a run upon the bank, and he had to make a run away from it. He thought to make the specie reserve of the bank less and he had to make himself scarce. He thought to diminish the funds of the bank, and he found himself nowhere. But while we admire the beautiful equity which changed his countenance instead of his bills, and sent him away empty of hard cash, we cannot withhold our meed of praise from the Banking System into which it is evidently organized. From the prompt attendance of the indignant citizens, it is clear that they were used to the work. A part, doubtless of the machinery of the institution as essential as the President or Directors, and much more essential than the scalers.

A wink from one of the officers was sufficient to summon them to the rescue, to put to flight any varlet that should insult the Bank by asking it to pay its debts. Now, what a beneficial change the general adoption of the Missouri system would work in our Banking system! Is it not obvious that failure is impossible under it? Suspension of a bank could not occur, for the suspension of the creditor would avert the possibility of it. When a churlish creditor could not draw specie without drawing a halter at the same time, it would produce a great and effectual change on his disposition.

Truly, Missouri must be the Eden of bankers, and Chillicothe its Paradise! Where a bank cannot stop payment because it never begins, and the voice and will of the brotherhood allows and protects its course, there is the city of the Soul for all that numerous and valuable class who spend their lives in cheating each other and call it business.

We look for an emigration to that better than golden region which shall take the content out of that Pike's Peak. Wall street will become a howling wilderness, if it do not save itself by taking a leaf out of the Ledge of the Branch Bank of the State of Missouri, at Chillicothe.

What the Opposition Should Do.
The Baltimore Patriot, speaking of the best policy for the Opposition to pursue in 1860, truly says:

"If the Opposition party desire to elect their President in 1860—if the great majority of the country wish to end the rule of the present unworthy, un-American administration, neglecting American interests and given over to mere popularity-hunting at the South, and office-seeking everywhere—the Opposition party will have to unite.

They will have to agree upon some MAN.
Let platforms go. Every one knows what they are worth. Each citizen has been disgusted in learning how far they may be trusted or relied on. It is clear that if the country chooses, some national, conservative American man can be elected by the people.
Shall we have such an one? Shall we put up and vote for one who can be advocated and voted for in each and every State of this Union? Or shall we repeat the miserable farce of the last Presidential election? It makes no difference whether we are agreed on every detail or not. Does it make a difference to the bundle of fadcious which agree on one thing—to call themselves united 'the Democracy'? Does it make any real difference to them that their composite elements are as wide asunder as the poles, upon this very question of Slavery?

Why then should we forever hold off?
We have no chance; they have no chance, but in a sensible union to do what we can for the country, and let the eternal, never-ending question of Slavery work out its own solution."

Opposition Jubilee at Memphis.—Letter from Hon. Edward Bates.

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering of Tennessee Whigs and Americans at Memphis, on the 25th, gathered to celebrate the victories achieved at the recent election, in which EMERSON ETHERIDGE and a majority of Congressmen were elected.

Eloquent speeches were made by the veteran statesman and patriot, JOHN BELL, the gallant Congressional Representative from the Ninth District, EMERSON ETHER-IDGE, and other distinguished men.

Among the letters received from eminent invited guests, was the following:

St. Louis August 20, 1859.—Hon. Jeremiah Clemens and Others—Committee of Invitation, Memphis, Tennessee: Sirs—I feel myself especially honored in receiving your kind invitation to attend a grand jubilee of the Opposition party, to be held at Memphis, on the 25th inst., in celebration of your recent victory in Tennessee.

It is with sorrow that I am constrained to deny myself the pleasure of joining you in the celebration of an event so honorable to the gallant men of Tennessee, and so promising of good to the country. Sickness and recent death in my family have so disarranged my plans for the summer vacation as to force me to this self-denial.

I please me very much gentleman, to find that you designate the band of patriots who have lately done the good work in Tennessee, as The Opposition Party. The name implies that the party is made of the good men of other parties—Democrats, Whigs, Americans, Republicans—all who can no longer brook the wild extravagance and wanton disregard of principle in an Administration and a party, which, emboldened by former unmerited success, vainly imagine that they "can afford to disregard the censures of the world," and to despise the judgement of history.

The party in office (I will not say in power) is, of itself, a weak and helpless minority. It has no chance of renewed success but the hope (I trust a vain and fallacious hope) that we will be so unwise and unpatriotic as to waste our strength in petty bickerings about old party names and subordinate questions of policy and convenience, and to split up our forces into platoons and sections, as if for the very purpose of enabling our inferior enemy to beat us all, in detail. If we be so unwise as that—if we allow the adversary to form the plan of our campaign, to marshal our troops, to tell us when to march, and where to camp, and how to fight, of course we will get what we earn and deserve—defeat.

And by mere folly, we will add to the humiliation of defeat, the sting of shame, in the consciousness that we had in our hand the means of victory and the assurance of the peace and prosperity of the Nation, but wantonly threw them away. However it may be elsewhere, I am sure it will not be so in Tennessee. Her gallant sons are always ready, when brave and generous deeds are needful. Her younger patriots high-spirited and bold against the enemy, but mild and forbearing to each other, will march, in cordial union, on to victory, their warm zeal guided, and, if need be, restrained and tempered, by the cool wisdom and prudence of the veteran BELL.

Your recent victory, and similar successes in other Southern and Western States embolden me to hope for the like good results all over the Union. The spirit of conservative patriotism is aroused, throughout the nation by the dangerous misgovernment and bold innovations of the last few years; and, in view of the great national interests now in peril, a better feeling—a feeling of harmony and mutual confidence, of kind forbearance on minor points of generous concession in favor of peace and unity—is visibly increasing in all the elements of The Opposition. Those who foster and advance that good feeling, and ripen it into a cordial union, will be great public benefactors.

Such union alone will constitute the victory without the necessity for another blow; for the Democracy, as now enervated and demoralized, will be no match for the united Opposition.

And such a victory! A victory in which all—even the vanquished—will have cause to rejoice, because it will restore peace and harmony to the excited sections, law and order to the disturbed territories, moderation and justice to the Government, and honor to the nation. Such, at least, is the earnest hope of your obliged friend and fellow citizen.

ED. BATES.

Is your horse perfectly gentle Mr. Dabster?
Perfectly gentle, sir; the only fault he has got; if that be a fault—is a playful habit of extending his hinder hoofs, now and then.

"By extending his hinder hoofs you don't mean kicking, I hope?"
"Some people call it kicking, Mr. Green, but it's only a slight reaction of the muscles—a disease rather than a vice."

From the St. Joseph Journal, August 30th.
ANOTHER INDIAN BATTLE.—Loss of Three Chiefs—Return of the Omahas from their Hunting Grounds—A Thousand Buffaloes killed—The Omahas' Farm—Soldiers at Sioux City.

From our esteemed friend J. Jewett Wilcox, clerk of the Omaha, which steamer left here yesterday morning, for St. Louis, just down from Sioux City, we learn important intelligence from our northwestern frontiers.

Dr. A. M. Robinson, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, was a passenger on the Omahas on her upward trip, and from the officers learned, as they came down, the particulars of another sanguinary Indian engagement.

Mr. Wilcox informed us that the Omahas have on their reserve, adjoining the town of Decatur, Nebraska Territory, 600 acres of as fine corn and beans as he ever saw in the best cultivated districts of the Western country.

Two companies of U. S. soldiers, infantry, with their officers, were encamped at Sioux City when the Omaha left. They had come the overland route from Fort Ridgeley, on the Mississippi river. They were becoming a source of serious annoyance to the citizens of Sioux City, by their drinking and frolicking, and general disorderly conduct.

The evening the Omaha arrived at Sioux City, some of the most adventurous and beer (not blood) thirsty of the soldiers, made an onslaught on a barrel of buck beer which the boat had landed, and drained to its dregs, for which act of gallantry the officers of the Omaha, and not those of "Uncle Sam," were duly called upon to "foot the bill."

On the 13th inst., a band of Brule Sioux came upon and attacked a band of the Poncas, while the latter were encamped on the banks of the Eau qui cour, or Running Water. After a brief but desperate engagement, the attacking parties were left victors of the field, but not without the loss of several scalps, the number not stated. The Poncas lost eleven killed, among whom were their Second, Third and Fourth Chiefs, and many wounded.

Nine hundred Omahas returned to their Reserve, from their hunting expedition, just as the Omaha reached Decatur, adjoining. They had been successful in their hunt, having killed and packed a thousand buffalo.

The Omahas had not heard of the massacre by the Brule Sioux, of a number of their men, women and children, an account of which we gave sometime since; until their return, and it was all the Superintendent and their Agent could do to appease their wrath.

THE GREAT EASTERN.—This nautical prodigy, according to the last accounts from Europe, is nearly completed, and will sail from England on the 1st of September.

Her dimensions and tonnage are thus given, in a Parliamentary return just issued:

Length,	697 6
Breadth,	82 8
Depth of hold,	31 6
Tonnage exclusive of engine room,	13,344
Gross tonnage,	18,916

At the public entertainment given on board this ship in honor of her completion, Lord Stanley said if this experiment succeeds, it will have reduced by one half the distance in point of time which now divides continents and nations which nature has separated by intervening oceans; it will be a greater step, a greater progress in the art of ship-building, than has ever been accomplished in our generation; it will render the passage over the stormy ocean to remote countries as easy and as free from discomfort as the railway train is at present; it will stimulate and develop trade to an almost incalculable extent; it will enable England to pour into the great empire of the East, in case of need, reinforcements and aid with a rapidity equal to that of the overland line, and by a route over which no foreign potentate can exercise control.

She is calculated to carry a population of not less than 10,000, including the crew.
Her completion, should she fully succeed, is an event in history.

Crinoline was originally the name of a Parisian modiste—one Madame Crinoline, who kept a set of dress-making rooms in the Rue de la Paix. It eventually came into use to denote the article most in repute at her establishment. She it was who, by the invention of horse hair woven into a sort of cloth and manufactured into petticoats, enabled the fair sex to dispense with that clumsy abomination which always placed them, if not in a headlong hurry, certainly in a bustle. The name of the petticoat was given from that of the inventor, as has frequently happened; the crinoline, the petticoat, was derived from Crinoline, the dressmaker.

U. S. SEABOARD.—The line of coast belonging to the United States is very extensive. According to the report of the coast survey, there are 6,821 miles of Atlantic coast, 3,467 miles of Gulf coast, and 2,181 miles on the Pacific—making a total of 12,469 miles. The main shore line of the Atlantic, including bays, etc., is twice the extent of the Gulf, three times that of the Pacific, and more than equal to that of the Pacific and Gulf combined. The South has 8 times as much sea-coast as the North.

Over-taxation of the mind produces both mental and physical exhaustion. One half the suicides result from or are connected with excessive mental labor.

HORACE GREELEY IN SACRAMENTO.—Mr.
Greeley arrived in Sacramento on Monday evening by rail from Folsom, at which place he was met by an escort of Sacramentoans.
The Standard thus describes Mr. Greeley's appearance:

"Mr. Greeley is about fifty years of age; stands nearly or quite six feet high, and is tolerably broad in the shoulders.
